

I am truly concerned about large television companies airing their own political views as the "news". As a viewer, I want my news to be accurate, and nonpartisan. I do not want to hear a large company's views on whom I need to choose as President of the United States. If the large company is allowed to air their version of whom they want to indorse--then the challenger should be given EQUAL time to state his/her own version. And the large company should be required to pay for their timeslot, and state that it is an advertisement--"Not the News!" Also who paid for it!!! Thank you, Joan McCormick-Douglas
